Iran wants lasting peace, says Khomeini

Iraq recaptures more territory

BAGHDAD, July 22, (Agencies): Iraq said today it recaptured land lost to Iran early in the Gulf war and claimed the action should help pave the way for peace. Iran admitted losing some territory and claimed the Iraqis used chemical weapons.

In Tehran, Ayatollah Khomeini said Iran sought a lasting peace with Iraq and its acceptance this week of a United Nations truce call is not merely "a tactic."

A military communique read over Iraqi television said, "we retook whatever was left of our land from the Iranians." It said the offensive, code-the representatives of the Islamic Republic of Iran and the Republic of Iraq that I would like to receive as soon as possible in New York the foreign ministers or other high government officials of each side to enter into intensive discussions with me on different aspects of my implementation plan for Security Council Resolution ### on Aug 24. Possibility

After Iran this week accepted the resolution, which calls for an immediate ceasefire, Iraq proposed direct talks on the implementation plan, but the Iranian side said these were unnecessary at this time.

Asked at the Friday press conference if there was a possibility of direct talks, the secretary-general declined to reply directly, asking in response: "Are you interested in a peaceful solution of the problem? In this case, please don't ask questions. Understand what I have said."

Shortly before the secretarygeneral's announcement. officials of both delegations said that if asked by Perez de Cuellar, their countries would send high level representatives to New York.

The secretary-general also said he expected a technical team of military experts to arrive in the Gulf next week to work toward an immediate ceasefire.

He said he expected to learn later today, or tomorrow, whether both sides would receive the team, led by Lieutenant General Martin Vadset of Norway.

Iraqi Ambassador Ismat Taha Kittani told reporters yesterday his government was studying the proposal. An Iranian delegate said today the team would arrive in Tehran on Sunday and spend three days in Iran before leaving for Turkey.

ISLAMABAD, July 22, (Reuter): Pakistan President Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq has barred political parties from participating in November's national elections in a move which infuriated the opposition.

Zia earlier declared elections will be held on Nov 18. The opposition, riding a wave of renewed popularity, had war-ned the President not to tinker with the electoral system. Banned But Zia bluntly told a news car bomb killed seven people and wounded 50 in West Beirut today in an attack apparently aimed against Syria's military presence in Lebanon, witnesses and police sources said.

They said the car, packed with 15 kg of TNT, blew up a few yards from a Syrian checkpoint and the offices of the Syrianbacked Arab Baath Party in the Syrian-controlled Cola area, site of at least four major car bombs since civil war erupted in 1975.

The blast instantly killed three Lebanese soldiers and four civilians who were driving through the district, witnesses said. A Syrian soldier told Reuters three Syrians were among those taken to hospital.

The explosion was the latest in a string of bloody attacks apparently launched by oppon-ents of the presence of 25,000 Syrian soldiers in Lebanon.

The monsoon has sent rivers in 11 of India's 25 states over their banks, said A.M. Bhola, an official at the Central Water

Zia bars political parties

Justifying his ban on parties, Zia told the crowded news conference that party-based elec-tions might be fine for established democracies but they could mislead simple people and inflame ethnic prejudices. "That does not mean I am going to ban the parties," he said.

"I cannot because the situation today is different from what it "In 1985 there was martial law in the country, the constitution was held in abeyance, the political parties were banned." He denied he was violating the constitution in barring the parties and called on them to use restraint to prevent violence on the streets.

Unexpected Zia's move was not unexpected and the President himself said: "The parties, knowing me, knew I was going to hold the election on a non-party basis." Political analysts and commentators had predicted he would not allow Benazir and her PPP to contest elections where they had a chance of forming a parliamentary majority.

If the PPP does not call a boycott of the polls as it did in 1985, it is conceivable that Benazir could still end up with reasonable representation in Parliament, political analysts

However, she is expecting her first child at the end of the year which could make campaigning difficult.

After the last election, many members elected as individuals grouped together under the Pakistan Muslim League, and Zia said there was nothing to stop the same happening again. Another option to Zia, according to analysts, would be to postpone the elections again before polling day, as he did in 1977 and again in 1979. But Zia said the poll would be held on schedule, barring exceptional circumstances. "My track record of 1977 is not very good. I admit it. But since then I have improved myself," he said. 'I do not foresee any difficulty of holding elections on schedule on 16 November." Mushahid Hussain, former editor of the Muslim newspaper, said the President's aim in barring parties was to weaken them and give himself more freedom to influence the new National Assembly and nominate a prime minister he felt he could trust.

Pakistan Muslim League (PML) sources said former Prime Minister Mohammad Khan Junejo, whose sacking by Zia on May 29 sparked the current political crisis, was travelling to Karachi to meet MRD leaders including Benazir. They said Junejo had been empowered to hold discussions with the MRD, prompting

'It is important that we create a completely different environmen for these children where they can grow up knowing there is an alternative to crime," he said.

Formerly, the father's name had to be given when a child was registered for school.

Welfare officials said that although some children got into schools by giving false names. a red-light district address would often reveal that their mothers were prostitutes and condemn the children to a life of ignorance.

Schools have now been told to accept mothers' names alone for registration. But the officials said prostitutes' children were still shunned by schoolmates.

This leads those who get into schools to perform badly and drop out early with no qualifications and no chance for jobs. They take refuge in the sordid world into which they were born, the social workers said. Soviets claim experts directing rebel operation

'Pakistani troops in Afghanistan'

MOSCOW, July 22, (Reuter): The Soviet Union on Thursday accused Pakistan of sending troops into Afghanistan to sup-port rebels fighting the Sovietbacked government in Kabul.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spok-esman Vadim Perfilyev also alleged that foreign specialists were extracting Afghan deposits of uranium ore for Pakistan's nuclear programme.

"In early July, a group of 11 military servicemen of the Pakistani Army were seen in Hakrez in Kandahar province with mem-bers of the (rebel) Islamic Party of Afghanistan," Perfilyev said. He said they were helping plan military operations.

A similar group had been identified in Zabul province, where they were guarding arms caches, Perfilyev said.

He repeated Soviet allegations that Afghan rebels were being assisted by foreign advisers and said 60 trucks loaded with weapons had been sent from Pakistan into Afghanistan. Uranium Perfilyev said the uranium deposits had been discovered in Jozjan province, in northwest Afghanistan. Foreign specialists had been sent in to extract the ore which was then transported illegally to Pakistan. "In this way the country's natural wealth is being squan-dered," he said. "This is worthy of particular note in the light of Pakistan's nuclear weapons ambitions.'

Perfilyev said 50 people had been killed and more than 60 wounded in a clash between rival rebel groups inside Pakistan. He did not say if Soviet troops had been involved in any recent fighting in Afghanistan. Under peace accords signed in Geneva in April, Moscow began withdrawing its 100,000 troops

The Soviet Union bas repeatedly accused Pakistan of violating the accords and has warned of grave consequences. But there are no indications that it has changed its plans for the withdrawal, which appears to be proceeding on schedule.

The president of the Afghan Mujahedeen's government-inexile warned Pakistan it could become a Soviet or Indian target if it did not help ensure a rebel victory in Kabul.

Ahmed Shah said on Thursday that since the Geneva accords were signed in April, some of the guerrillas' backers had urged compromise with the Afghan government of President Najibullah.

Making a strong plea for continuing support, particularly from Islamabad, he warned Pakistan it would not be "unbothered" by the Soviet Union or other enemies like India if it did

India has never condemned the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in 1979 and opposes Pakistan's aim of ensuring a strictly Islamic state in Kabul.

Pakistan and Afghanistan greed in Geneva to stop meddling in each other's affairs, while the Soviet Union pledged to withdraw its troops by February 15 next year.

Ahmed Shah, whose government was formed in June from members of a seven-party guerrilla alliance based in Pakistan, did not elaborate on his warning to Islamabad.

Speaking to an audience of diplomats and experts on Afghanistan, he said the mujahedeen had no intention of compromising with Najibullah.

Meanwhile, the Afghan government announced on Thursday the creation of the country's 3 province, nooranistan, from part of the eastern of Kunar bordering Pakistan.

MANAMA, July 22, (AP): The US Navy cruiser Vincennes weighed anchor overnight and left port, where it had been for the past 15 days while a team of US military experts conducted an investigation into its shooting down of an Iranian jetliner on July 3.

Á Navy spokesman, who asked not to be named, said the ship "returned to duty," but under standing Navy policy, refused to discuss its movements.

The 9,600-ton missile cruiser is not scheduled to depart the Gulf until late August. But there has been speculation that it might be pulled out earlier to help ease tensions over the destruction of Iran Air flight 655.

Palestinian folklore festival on uprising

Kuwait Student's Union organised a Palestinian folklore festival at Sabah Al Salem theatre in Khaldiya in co-operation with the Islamic League of Palestinian Students (ILPS), to mark the end of a week of activities to support the Palestinian uprising. The festival was patronised by the chairman of the Islamic Charitable Authority, Yousef Al Hajji.

Praised The festival opened with the recital of verses from the Holy Quran. The chairman of the students' union, Mohammed Al Dallal, then delivered a speech in which he praised the uprising in the occupied territories and said that this Islamic revolution brought to life the spirit of Jihad (holy war).

He also commended the Islamic League of Palestinian Students for their positive contribution to the activities of the week and called on all Muslims to support the uprising by all possible means.

The head of ILPS also delivered a speech, in which he stressed that the Palestinian uprising demonstrated fine examples of sacrifice for their cause and heroic actions against the only way to restore Palestine to its rightful owners. Showed

The festival included a number of enthusiastically rendered Islamic songs, the Palestinian dance Dabka and plays which showed Palestinian suffering under the Jewish occupation.

Eid viewing on KTV

A MAGIC show, four English feature films and a host of regular shows, apart from three musicals from part of Eid viewing on KTV 2. Movies will be shown on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights. Musicals are on the first three days of Eid; and US illusionist David Copperfield, who vanished through the Great Wall of China, returns on Eid day to amaze viewers with his daring illusions.

KTV 1 broadcasts "Yourn Al Arafah" (Arafat Day) from 11.30 am today. The satallite coverage of the most important

11.30 am today. The satellite coverage of the most important day preceding Eid Al Adha covers the transition of pilgrims to Mount Arafat. At 5 pm today, the rites of the haj (pilgrimage) will also be shown.

Although English films don't seem exciting, there are several latest Arabic films on KTV 1, apart from children's serials and plays. Viewing for children includes films and plays on both channels, as listed in the weekly schedules.

KTV's programmes director Bader Al Mudhafsays that they have plans to introduce a new concept, "providing on the spot coverage of important events is under review," he told an Arabic daily. At present this is difficult.

Al Mudhaf admits that "no changes were made for the newscasts" since KTV started broadcasting. As far as viewing goes, everything is done to please the viewers. Atleast, they succeed sometimes.

Ozal bids to head off opposition challenge

By John Owen-Davies

ANKARA. (Reuter): Turkish Prime Minister Turgut Gzal is aiming for early local elections in October to head off an opposition bid for power and to help heal splits in his own party, independent political sources

"We will remain the number one party in Turkey." Ozal told reporters after saying he planned to recall parliament from recess on Aug 2 to vote on a constitutional amendment to hold the poll a year before scheduled

Erdal Inonu, leader of the main main opposition Social Democrat Populist Party (SHP). accused Ozal's conservative Motherland Party of "trying to make changes in laws for its own

Deniz Baykal, the SHP's new secretary-general and strongman, told Reuters earlier this month he hoped local elections would be held next year, adding he believed his party's showing then might force Ozal to call a snap general election. Certain

The Motherland, with pledged help from the right-of-centre True Path Party (TPP), is almost certain to win the 300 votes needed in the 450-seat parliament to amend the constitution, which says local polls must be held at five-year intervals. Political sources said Ozal wanted an early poll to avoid a possible damaging local poll defeat next year after introducing more austerity measures to shore up Turkey's shaky economy, and to give the revamped SHP minimal time to prepare.

Opposition parties, especially the SHP, are rapidly regrouping and reorganising. It is to the advantage of the Motherland to catch them unprepareddaily Millivet.

Ozal also wants to take advantage of his increased personal popularity in his party since he nurrowly escaped assassination during a party congress on June 18, the sources said.

After the assassination bid, an open split emerged between the party's liberal wing and a fervent religious-nationalist group.

the 1980 Army coup. "if Ozal emerges from local elections with a modicum of success, such as holding two of the major cities of Ankara, Istanbul and Izmir, he should be able to achieve at least some semblance of party unity," one political

The nationwide local polls for mayors and local councils in towns and cities will be crucial for Ozal, widely believed to have ambitions for the Turkish presidency when Kenan Evren ends his seven-year term in November 1989.

Eight months after sweeping back to office in a general elections with an overwhelming 292 seats in parliament, the Motherland now lies second to the SHP in opinion polls, mainly because of widespread discontent over soaring inflation.

The latest independent poll ive SHP 32 per cent support, Motherland 29 per cent and TPP 23 per cent. This compares with 28 per cent, 36 per cent and 19 per cent, respectively, in last November's general election.

Concerned Ozal told Reuters on July 12 he was not concerned with the opinion polls, often conducted with samples of under 200 people.

"After the (general) election we have been taking hard (economic) measures. I believe if you don't take these measures, then later you will lose much more popularity," he said.

His free-market economic policies have been blamed by some economists for forcing up inflation to around 75 per cent, from just under 40 per cent before November's general elec-

Economists believe Ozal will ease the financial brakes before the local polls and, in an attempt to woo disgruntled farmers, he may increase subsidies for a range of agricultural products.

By Bill Tarrant

JAKARTA. (Reuter): Longawaited peace talks next week among Kampuchea's bitterly opposed sides at a Highland Palace outside Jakarta could be the first step toward a political settlement of the nine-year con-

A dialogue of any sort among the Kampuchean factions and Vietnam may owe as much to an easing of big-power rivalries and war-weariness in Hanoi as it does to Kampuchean desires for reconciliation. Asian diplomats

China, the Soviet Union and the United States are not invited to the talks on July 25.

Prince Norodom Sihanouk. the once and possibly future leader of the war-torn Indochinese country, has sent his regrets. and is not expected at what have been called "cocktail party" peace talks, to stress the absence of diplomatic protocol.

Sihanouk abruptly resigned the leadership of his UN-recognised guerrilla coalition last week, to take up exile in France and plan his next moves.

Key The prince, who led what was then known as Cambodia from 1941 until overthrown in a coup in 1970, is widely considered the key to any settlement. All the others invited have said they will come to the gathering at the old summer palace of Dutch colonial governors surrounded by botanical gardens in the volcanic highlands of Bogor, outside Jakarta. Hun Sen. the prime minister of the Vietnamese-backed government in Phnom Penh, will face Sihanouk's resistance coalition. which also includes the notorious Khmer Rouge and a centrist faction led by former Kampuchean Premier Son Sann.

Indonesia has prepared separate bungalows in the palace grounds for the four Kampuchean delegations, who will attempt an exploratory dialogue among themselves for the first time since Vietnam invaded in December, 1978.

Hanoi, which has said its estimated 100,000 troops will be out of Kampuchea by 1990, will send Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach to participate in a second stage of the talks. Tiols Indonesia and the other five members of the non-communist association of South-East Asian Nations, as well as Vietnam's ally Laos, will join in at that point.

Indonesia has deliberately set up an open-ended programme, with no set agenda and no time limit on the talks. Foreign Minister Ali Alatas told journalists last week.

What will China want? What does Vietnam want? What will Sihanouk accept? These are not the point." Alatas said. "The point is they will speak directly and deal with issues one by one in a free and informal atmos-

Western diplomats say the talks could pave the way for a broader international conference that could draft a blueprint for a peaceful and democratic Kampuchea.

"Few expect spectacular results at this meeting," one said.
"It's taken a long time to bring Vietnam to the negotiating table. and that is seen because of pressure from Moscow," he said. "Now everything seems con-fused by Sihanouk's departure. So the most that can be achieved is to set dates for an official international conference.

Influenced

The destiny of Kampuchea ravaged by revolution and civil war since the Khmer Rouge came pouring out of jungle camps in 1975 to overthrow the US-backed Lon Nol government -- has been greatly influenced by big-power relations.

The United States has insisted its only role in settling the conflict is to back the initiatives of the ASEAN countries.

BANI NAIM, Occupied West Bank, (AP): The uprising in the West Bank and Gaza Strip has spawned a new generation of Palestinian leaders and given their people confidence to challenge Israel Army rule.

The change is evident in Bani Naim. a farming town 17 miles (27 kilometres) south of occupied Jerusalem, where the streets are blackened from tires burned in protest of Israeli occupation,

Hassan Manasara, 27, a leader of the town's resistance, said a new community spirit has taken shape and that a senior Israeli officer encountered it when he came to Bani Naim to urge calm. Manasara said the residents confounded the Israeli by refusabout their place of work. "When the offcer asked how many people are farmers. everyone raised his hand," Manasara said. "And when he asked how many work as labourers in Israel, everyone raised his hand. "The Israeli threatened to cut

By Nicolas B. Tatro OCCUPIED JERUSALEM. (AP): More than eight months of Palestinian uprising and strikes have turned Israelis hawkish, but the tough approach often masks ambivalence about the future of the occupied lands and the Army's use of force.

Israeli defensiveness stems from a belief that the occupied territories, especially the Jordan River's West Bank, are uniquely bound to the state of Israel. Lt Gen Dan Shomron, the armed forces chief of staff, said the West Bank and Gaza Strip were not distant battlefields like Algeria was for the French or Vietnam for the Americans. "There is no debate among the soldiers. They know that, by and large, this problem is inside our own house, and there is no one who can take charge of the situation and solve it but the Army," Shomron told the Foreign Press Association in occupied Some critics, however, fear

Even so, Bani Naim, has paid a heavy price. Residents say three townspeople have been killed, 35 wounded and 150 arrested since December. The town of 10,000 also spent 20 days under an around-the-clock curfew.

Residents agreed to austerity measures, such as banning large wedding and graduation parties, to conserve resources to support the families of those without work or in jail.

Bonds of practical co-existence have been torn by the bloodshed and mass arrests, which touched most villages and neighbourhoods.

During the unrest, more than 224 Palestinians were killed and 4,267 arrested, according to the Palestinian-run Human rights Information Centre. Another 36,000 were injured, including 6,000 with lasting injuries.

Labour's idea of giving up land for peace was the highest in a decade with 48 per cent in favour, 41 per cent against and 11 per cent undecided. This was a 7 per cent jump to the favourable side in six months, he said.

Polls by Smith and the rival Dahaf Organisation also found a majority of the public ready to talk with the Palestine Liberation Organisation if it recognized Israel and renounced violence. Ambivalent

The rise of Jesse Jackson

From poverty to a political force

By Michael Conlon

ATLANTA, (Reuter): Josse Jackson made the first strong. un for the presidency of any black in American history and seems likely now to remain a force in national politics for years to

"odds-breaker and dream-maker" who rose from illegitimate birth and poverty in South Carolina won seven million votes in pursuit of the Democratic presidential nomination eventually captured by Michael Dukakis.

The 46-year-old Baptist preacher and civil rights leader cast himself as a barrier-breaker for minorities and the poor and powerless, and promised to give those who backed him access to power within the Democratic Imprint "Hold your head up high.

Never surrender became his signature plea. "Every day I run I'm pushing back mountains. There are no more impossible dreams." And while he unsuccessfully sought to become Dukakis's vice-presidential running mate, Jackson did win from the Massachusetts governor the promise of a substantial role in his election campaign against Republican George Bush.

He also came away with an unprecedented imprint on the party's election platform. Polls and political experts said anti-black bias, as well as Jack-son's radical liberal philosophy, would have doomed any ticket he was on. During the months of primary voting, he failed to make deep inroads into the white vote. He insisted he was not running a black campaign against a white establishment. His central campaign theme was that America's legal battle against racial discrimination has been largely won, but workers of all races are still seeking economic justice.

He became a fixture marching on picket lines alongside bluecollar whites, whose ranks in the past have included bastions of support for racist causes and can-"It's not white versus black."

he told them. "It's barracudas versus small fish. The barracudas swim in deep water where there ain't no light. All the small fish look just alike to all the barracudas down there in the dark."

Leap

And 1988 for Jackson marked a big leap from four years earlier when he won 3.5 million primary-season votes, half his total this year. In 1984 he electirfied black voters, who were thrilled to see one of their own rattling the white power structure, but four years later his appeal broadened to Hispanics, other minorities, the poor, and party activists.

Putting together a smash hit group

By Tim de Lisle

THE three teenage boys who comprise the latest sensation in the world of pop are not just the stuff of schoolgirl's dreams. They are the stuff of marketing executives' dreams.

Packaged pop groups have a long history, embracing the Beatles, whom Brian Epstein transformed from mean rockers in leather jackets to lovable moptops in suits and ties, as well as the Monkees, Frankie Goes To Hollywood et al.

But the packaging of Bros, currently on their first concert tour, goes further. They are not just another success story: they are a human how-to book, an object lesson for any manager or producer looking to make a fat profit with slender resources. It goes something like this

1. How to find the group: Bros are not entirely somebody's creation. The three of them - identical twins Matt and Luke Goss, from Peck-

ham, and Craig Logan, from Kirkcaldy --- were playing as a group before they met any svengali, and they were already called Bros.

They were discovered some 18 months ago by Nicky Graham (I'm the svengali"), an old music-business hand whose chief claim to fame, or notoriety, was having been the man behind the late-1970s easy-listening group the Nolan Sisters. After working as a talent-spotter for CBS Records, Graham took two years off to master the electronic technology that removes the need for instruments in the music of today.

A friend tipped him off about Bros. Where others saw three callow youths with long hair, Graham spotted Massive Potential. The boys' music wasn't up to much, but he could see to that. On the really important things, they scored highly. Age. A group that is going to be aimed at the younger recordbuyer (six to 16) has got to be young. Young does not mean 25, or even 20. The Goss brothers were 18, Logan was 17.

Looks. Must be good, but not too good. Perfection (Whitney Houston, for instance) appeals to an older market. Young fans find Luke Goss's sticking-out ears very endear-

Name. Should be punchy. Curiosity Killed The Cat doesn't roll off the tongue, and where are they now? Bros fits into huge tabloid headlines; handily for the more cynical journalist, it also rhymes with 2. Where to take them:

Not a record company. There is work to be done before the group will be in a position to get a good contract with a big label. First, you sign up with a manager, Graham took Bros to Tom Watkins, 37, of Massive Management.

Watkins, says a colleague, had a lot to do with Frankie Goes to Hollywood on the merchandising side." He now man-ages the Pet Shop Boys, who are immensely popular with Bros fans' big brothers and sisters.

Unlike many managers. Massive also does its clients marketing. Marc Evans, Bros's personal manager, says: "We don't let the record company market the record. We encompass graphics, design everything.

Everything means, above all: An image. Bros are "a very visual band," Marc Evans says. But when they started out. they weren't really sure of what clothes they liked. We kind of pointed them in the right direction.

That meant keeping things simple. The look had to be easy for the fans to copy. Bros now have short, well-oiled hair and earnings; like Madonna, they wear ordinary clothes — Levi's 501 jeans, white T-shirts, leather jackets - with distinctive accessories, like James Dean buckles on their belts and playing cards, watches and Grolsch lager bottle-tops tucked into their shoes. Graham, meanwhile, came up with: A sound. Bros's records are very tiny, very mechanical — very 1988. There is, however. no denying that Matt Goss can sing.

The writing credit goes, mysteriously, to "The Brothers".
The gullible customer assumes that this means the twins. Massive Management, if asked, say it's Nicky Graham and the three boys, with Tom Watkins doing some of the words

3. How to get into the charts: First, hire a "plugger" to lobby radio and television to give the group exposure. Most bands are happy with the record-company pluggers; Bros use an independent -Neil Ferris, of Ferret & Span-ner. He could not get Radio One interested in the first single, "I Owe You Nothing", and it peaked around Number 75 in the chart. (It is now Number One, having been re-released in the wake of the other hits.) But he did get Bros on the Boxing Day edition of "Going Live", the Saturday morning children's television show, with the next single, "When Will I Be Famous?" The answer to the question was any day now. Ferris plugged away so hard that the record was banned by Radio One for a fortnight, but it went to Number Two. Brosmania was under way. 4. How to make it really big:

One hit single doesn't make a career, or much money. It is but one of a series of landmarks. achieved in a variety of ways. Record packaging. Issue a record in two different mixes, or three different sleeves: the bard-core fan will want them

Television. You must be on it; you must not be on it all the time (Curiousity Killed The Cat were "very lax" about this, Marc Evans says). If possible, get a programme to yourself:
"Bros — The Story So Far" went out nationwide on ITV

just as the group's album "Push" appeared.

The Press. It is vital to be on good terms with Smash Hits, the teenagers' favourite music paper. Bros have appeared in it more than anyone else in living memory ("Brilliant 8-Page Pull-Out BROS Booklet!") The tabloid newspapers follow where Smash Hits leads. Quality newspapers are not

> Signing sessions. Good for whipping up hysteria among tabloid editors. A record shop is a confined space. It doesn't take many screaming schoolgirls to cause CHAOS IN OXFORD ST AS BROS FANS GO WILD.

Concerts: Necessary to establish what Marc Evans calls "musical credibility"? Sponsorship. Concert tours mean high costs. Bros's tour is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola, a seal of corporate approval previously granted only to much bigger stars (Jackson, Attitude to fans. Must be positive. The one thing fans like more than pelvic thrusts, indepth interviews and free posters is to be told that the group love them. Matt, the mummy's boy lead singer, is especially strong on this. Fan identification. In 1988 pop fans like to identify with their heroes as well as worship them. They like it when Smash Hits follows Bros on their first trip to America ("Bros, it must be said, are fantastically excited today"), or when Matt says his hero is Michael Jackson. 5. How to avoid burn-out:

When you become this successful this quickly, there is no known method. But if anyone is going to crack it, it will proba-bly be Bros.

Hallucinations of godliness

By Ed Vullaimy

THIS is certainly not another 1960s book. It is a story about the imagination unleashed; and about how the taking of little tablets or the dropping of jelly onto sugarlumps became something akin to to a holy rite, and how the ensuing psychedelic hallucinations came to be confused in earnest with godliness.

LSD itself first appeared just before five o'clock on Monday April 19th, 1943, in Basle, Switzerland, when Albert Hoffman, an employee of the Sandoz pharmaceutical company, completed some experiments with a fungus called Claviceps Purpurea. He synthesised down the 25th compound of an acid series he had developed from the mushroom — the lysergic acid series; he dropped two millionths of a gram of it into a glass of water and drank it down. As he rode home on his bicycle, the landscape around hìm exploded.

Within 18 years of Hoffman's experiment, LSD was in use at the Massachusetts Medical Health Centre, as a mimic of madness. Before long, the English psychiatrist Humphrey Osmond - who was using mescalin on mental patients in Canada - invented the term "psychedelic", but by now the goalpots had been moved this was not psychotherapy any more, for Osmond had teamed up with two men with different ideas, an English mystical writer living in Los Angeles called Aldous Huxley. and a Mr Al Hubbard, a Catholic visionary and President of the Uranium Corporation of Vancouver. It was the latter who requested from Sandoz forty-three cases of LSD, which Sandoz duly supplied from Switzerland.

After dropping — or distribution — a sizeable quantity of the shipment, the triad of Huxley-Osmond-Hubbard toured the USA, seeking to interest leading intellectuals and political figures in the Other World to which they had been admitted through "the door in the wall" of the mind they wanted LSD to change everything. A five-year LSD therapy clinic was established in Los Angeles with Sandoz's blessing, and others quickly followed. A notice went up in the Cathedral of the Holy Rosary in Vancouver beseeching Our Holy Mother the Virgin to "help all who call on her to understand the psy-

But the first synthetic LSD was manufactured with rather different motives in mind, by the CIA. Inspired by experiments carried out at Dachau by the SS-Hauptstur-control drugs, the OSS - later the CIA - began an extraordinary mind-control prog-ramme called MK-Ultra, for which it contacted Sandoz and ordered up the company's entire supply of LSD. The progress of this lunatic plan has been documented elsewhere. but Stevens' account is full of irony and annecdote: the "casehardened spooks who would break down crying or go all gooey about the brotherhood mfuhrer in its search for mind-test LSD on their clients. Soon, we hit more familiar ground: Kerouac, Burroughs, Ginsberg ... and eventually Dr Tim Leary and the Harvard Project. Leary began with a psychological method - blessed by Harvard — which entailed transforming the mind through psilocybin. With LSD he changed tack, ending up with the League for Spiritual of man," or Operation Midnight Climax, in which the CIA

commandeered a San Francisco brothel so the girls could

Discovery and Turn On, Tune In. Drop Out. But where Huxley had wanted to "turn on the Best and the Brightest," Leary wanted a popular cultural revolution based on LSD.

Science and psychology retreated as acid evangelism took over. Huxley died on the same day as JFK, except that Huxley was administered progressive doses of LSD as he left this life, and his wife Laura was whispering "light and free you let go darling, forward and up, toward the light" as Huxley took his leave.

Stevens' book remains celebratory of the LSD promise for a little longer yet — he is, with reservations, an admirer of Leary. Enter the enchanting figure of Ken Kesey, the Pranksiers and their Kool-Aid Acid Test. Enter the Grateful Dead, and all those sincere or intellectually adventurous people bringing about an acid culture alongside the losers and the self-indulgent in Frisco. Enter the indefatigable Tim Scully, who took LSD on to "the next step" — the nightmarish STP with all the bad trips, the hospital waiting rooms and the fall from whatever height it was that Huxley, Leary and Co. had climbed. When the LSD people did fall, it wasn't necessarily medical - most of them didn' go the slightest bit made - it was just that there wasn't another Summer of Love there to catch them.

There is no question that LSD underwrites the post-war American pageant in the same way that opium underwrote the Romantic rebellion of the 19th century. Stevens seems to want to suggest an apparent contradiction: that the uncontrollable must be controlled. And this is a book that shows how a legitimate, even noble idea went wrong because it did not take care.

"YOU are the only man". wrote the Dalai Lama in 1913 to the British Political Officer, Sir Charles Bell, "who is so well acquainted with Tibetan affairs as to be able to help us in all matters of importance. We now hear that you are soon leaving for England, which, if true, will kill Tibet like a man who is strangled."

On this occasion Bell was only going on home leave: his extraordinary relationship with Tibet and her God-King was to flourish until 1921 when he retired from political service. He had learned to speak Tibetan fluently from his 'incomparable friend" Palhese, a Tibetan of noble birth. The 13th Dalai Lama, leader of and her independence, accepted him as an adviser and grew to love him like a brother. With the elegance of a born diplomat, he was able to teach His Holiness of world affairs and in return to learn a great deal about Tibet and her customs. Bell's fluency in the language enabled them to dispense with an interpreter, and they would talk alone for hours and correspond in long, courteous letters.

Reincarnation Although each Dalai Lama is believed to be a reincarnation of the first, they vary enormously. Only the fifth and the 13th were known as "The Great". This portrait, first published in 1946, shows why: it reveals a humorous, gentle man wielding enormous power conscientously and humbly for the good of his people and Tibetan Buddhism.

The book is rich with descriptions of the country (the highest on earth, and almost tree-less), the ceremonies and traditions, and the extreme cold (enjoyed by Tibetans for its ability to clear the mind).

In Tibet it is punishable to criticise the government but singing is sacred; so women labourers make up songs and pass along rumours and gossip that way. Referring to the sacking of a cabinet minister, they sang:

"Though he from Heaven's Grieve centre be cast down, Grieve not, ye turquoise bees!"

My own grandfather, Lt Col

Weir, was one of Bell's successors. They both came from that great number of sea-green incorruptibles who administrated India. Bell refers to "his genial kindly disposition" and his personal friendliness with the Tibetans during their troubles with China.

My grandmother was the first Englishwoman to visit Lhasa. She told His Holiness of Amy Johnson's record-breaking flight to Australia from England. The Dalai Lama pondered over the story for a few seconds, then remarked: "And why was she in a hurry?" This is a fascinating book written by a man no less remarkable than his distinguished subject.

SHAW was one of the greatest letter-writers in the English language, almost on a level with Byron, and here is the final volume of the definitive edition. Some will judge the editing heavy-handed, for Mr Laurence, a Canadian telis us who Mr Micawber, Disraeli and Mrs Simpson were, for example. But I often found his notes illuminating and he knows everything about his weird subject.

Shaw was born during the Crimean War, and was already 70 when this collection of 750 letters, covering his last quarters century, begins. They are thus the epistles of a long twilight. Not that there is any falling off: one of the most brilliant, concerning the peculiar money-habits of Elgar, was written to Sir John Beith when Shaw was 92. Moreover, since he had known almost everyone, and felt he could lay down the law on anything, there is something in this vast tome for all tastes. Weight apart, it is the perfect takeaway book this summer.

The least interesting group (to my mind) concern spelling, punctuation, pronunciation and shorthand, on which Shaw held well-informed but cranky views. (He wrote most of his letters in shorthand for his secretary to type). Next come many letters dealing with his theatre royalties and literary copyrights. Like Byron, Shaw could make even business letters compulsively readable, but clearly there is a limit to what we want to know about his dealings with his tiresome German translator.

Then there is a large group on the publication of his correspondence with Ellen Terry and Mrs Patrick Campbell and his involvement with the Oscar Wildesaga. Again, the appeal is limited though for some, no doubt, compulsive. They illustrate Shaw's kindness, generosity (a great feature of this back in the state of this back in the state of the s book, cheques flying about in all directions) and his evident iking for difficult women.

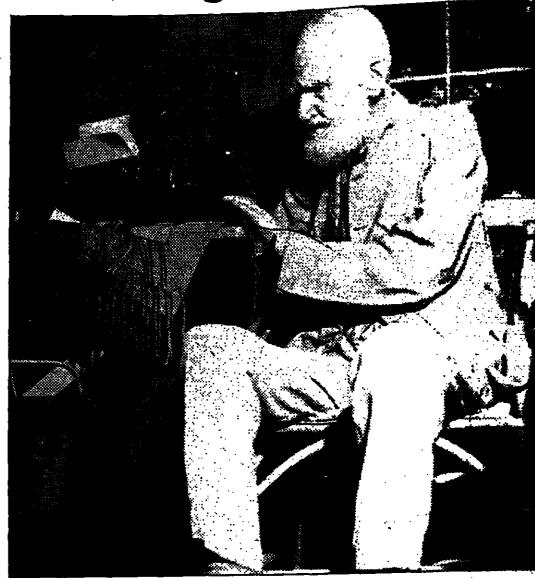

These included his wife Charlotte, said to have been very bad-tempered (she was accident-prone and always bumping herself), Lady Astor, who insisted on washing his hair and beard in Lux, and Virginia Woolf, with whom he had a lovey-dovey exchange the year before her suicide, But he could handle difficult men too: his letters to Lord Alfred Douglas are among the most striking in this collection.

Naturally the largest bunch concern the staging of his plays. and here his knowledge, vast make incomparable reading. As a starter, I recommend the reader to turn to page 579, where he instructs Robert Donat, young but already world-famous, on how the star of a play should make his first appearance:

Never make your entry into a crowd, and form merely one of t. The star must always be a figure apart. When you enter in the first act, everyone must be sitting down.

There are many such gems dotted about. Though vain, Shaw was not self-centred and he was always thinking about the audience: every playwright of today, with the exception of Tom Stoppard and Harold Pin-ter, could benefit from this volume, and even they might learn something.

On matters he knew about, Shaw wrote not only with authority but what can only be described as scintillating commonsense. There is, for instance, a superb letter to Felix Topolski on dust-jackets. The artist wanted to draw Shaw but he vetoed

People see the cover of a book on a shop counter for nothing. It makes no money for the author or publisher unless it tempts people to buy the book. A drawing of a ridiculous old man may amuse them; but it will not suggest that the book is worth reading: on the contrary . So draw us something attractive, and keep me out of it.

Shaw was particularly good on music, and in this volume he dictates to such celebrities as Arthur Bliss, Elgar, Harriet Cohen and Adrian Boult. There is a magnificent letter (to the co-editor of Paderewski's memoirs) on the evolution of another on rare varieties of Victorian brass-instruments.

Shaw never hesitated to offer advice outside his sphere too often with devastating effect. His letter to Kingsley Martin, who was wailing despondently after the 1942 Far East disasters, is a classic statement of how an editor should respond to bad news. He also instructed Augustus

John on how to paint a portrait. This occurred when Field Marshal Montgomery, then at the height of his fame and due to be painted by John, requested that Shaw be present to amuse him during the sittings. Shaw characteristically obliged, commenting to John: "Fancy a soldier being intelligent enough to want to be painted by you and to talk to me!" At various times, Shaw told Keynes about economics. Churchill about leading the opposition, Nehru about running India and the BBC about broadcasting (but then we all do that).

All these letters contain some sense, but the quotient is smallest when he turns to politics, about which he felt strongest and though he had the most to teach the world. Like most intellectuals, he worshipped power and admired the powerful. He backed all the dicpowerful. He backed all the dic-tators. It would be interesting to see a performance of Gen-eva, in which characters based on Hitler, Mussolini and Franco make sympathetic appearances. Unfortunately it contains a hostile portrait of a Jew, and would probably be regarded as insufferable today.

References to Jews in these letters lift the lid on a moral vacuum in his mind. He wrote to Beatrice Webb, a propos of we ought to tackle the Jewish question by admitting the right of states to make eugenic experiments by weeding out any strains that they think undesirable, but insisting that they should do it as humanely as they can afford to."

He was personally insensitive too, insisting to an Australian Jewish friend that the, Anschluss was just, and boasting that his Evening Standard article saying so — "And so — Heil Hitler! by George Bernard Shaw" -- had been "placar-ded" all over London "in the biggest capitals." Hitler was Germany's "greatest states-man". His speech of January 1939 (one of the most sinister) was 'a wonderful performance". As late as October 1942 Shaw was reading Mei Kampf "attentively", telling. Nancy Astor: "[Hitler] is the greatest living Tory ... Your party should capture him and keep him as a teacher and leader while checkmating his Shaw had no reservations about "phobias" when praising Stalin. There is much material here on his notorious visit to Russia in 1931 during the collectivisation campaign, when Stalin was murdering or starving to death millions. The methods used to hoodwink Shaw and others are described in Robert Conquest's The Harvest of Sorrow But as late as 1941, when the facts were well known in Bugain. Shaw still insisted in a length of H.G. Wells, that it was precisely collectivisation, and its "suc-cess", which "rank [Stalin] as the greatest living statesman." He seems to have remained a fulsome apologist for Stalin. and a Communist (by his own definition) until the end. Shaw's last years, when the death of his wife released him into frisky bachelorhood again, were mixed. He kept his faculties, as these letters show. But like other world-famous intellectuals - Tolstoy, Sartre, Russell, for instance - he became the target for vultures. These pages make painful reading and suggest the title for a play. The Darkest Days of Bernard Shaw. But it would take an Ibsen to write it, for at this point in the book the laughs run

Development projects provide 'buoyant market for foreign firms'

Return of confidence will reactivate trade cycle

IRAN'S acceptance of UN Security Council resolution 598, which envisages a settlement in its 8-year-old war with Iraq, has created a buoyant atmosphere among Gulf economists, financiers and officials about business prospects in their region.

In one measure or another, they saw the possible ending of hostilities as creating a wave of confidence that would lead to a boom in business and trade, a return of petrodollar capital to the area and a scramble by multinational companies for infrastructure contracts.

The return of confidence will reactivate the trade cycle in the short run and prompt hesitant private sector and shareholding companies to reconsider their investment policies and invest money in new ventures which

* Peace prospects would help stabilise oil prices: envoy

WASHINGTON, July 22, (KUNA): Iraq's ambassador to the US predicted yesterday that peace between Iran and Iraq would lead to "stability in oil pricing and fair sharing of oil markets" by both countries, which are members of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

In an interview with the Washington Post, Ambassador Abdul Amir Ali Al Anbari said the war has made it "difficult for OPEC to negotiate sensible pricing" because of Iran's suspicions that Saudi Arabia was conspiring against Tehran. The envoy said that co-operation between Iran and Iraq would help stabilise .oil prices, but would not necessarily increase them.

UN Secretary-General Javier Pereze de Cuellar announced in New York that he was immediately dispatching teams to lian and irad to begin discussing details of the ceaselire in the nearly eight-year-old war. The UN chief said he hoped the teams would complete their initial work within a week, after which he agreement. Iraq agreed to the ceasefire a year ago when it was passed by the UN.

The ambassador also said that if the war ends, "a new horizon, will open up in US-Iraq cooperation in all spheres." He said the war has "constrained" US-Iraqi relations because of US efforts to remain neutral.

During the years of Shah, Iran was America's principal ally in the Arabian Gulf. Now, after eight years of bitter relations with the Ayatollah's revolutionary government and the embarrassment of the Iran-Contra scandal, the administration is waiting for Tehran to designate an authorised official to open a dialogue with Washington, a senior official told the paper, adding that Tehran hasn't yet taken that step.

India likely to buy oil from Nigeria

NEW DELHI, July 22: The government is considering purchase of oil from Nigeria against outstanding export dues, according to Economic Times. Huge amounts due to Indian exporters are locked up in Nigeria because of that country's acute foreign exchange constraints. Nigerian buyers of Indian goods have failed to make payments even for exports undertaken before 1984.

The government has already entered into a deal with Libya for purchase of oil against similar outstanding payments.

In view of the difficulties being faced by the exporters, the Federation of Indian Export Organisations (FIEO) had urged the Commerce Ministry to explore the possibility of enter-ing into a deal with Nigeria on similar lines.

The Commerce Ministry has informed the federation that the department of economic affairs in the Finance Ministry is working out a strategy to expedite the repatriation of the blocked

The Central Bank of Nigeria amounts. (CBN) had earlier formulated a scheme to reconcile exporters' claims against similar returns to pending payments for the Nigerian banks and then to pay them in instalments with interest as due from April 1, 1984, at the rate of LIBOR, plus one per cent, up to June 1990.

Outflow of Gulf funds on the decline

OPEC's foreign assets total $473b, says study

MANAMA, July 22, (KUNA): countries have accumulated foreign assets stimated at around $473 billion from 1973 to 1987, with the GCC countries alone having accounted for around 75 per cent of this amount or $355 billion, according to an economic report released here.

The Gulf economic and financial report published by the Manama-based Gulf International Bank said Gulf investors have been quite active in the international markets since the early oil-boom years.

Many high net-worth individuals, financial and trading institutions as well as government bodies have sizeable overseas investments ranging from bank deposits and fixed income securities to shares, real estate and direct investments in businesses abroad. Slowdown

But with the economic slowdown of the past few years, the outflow of Gulf funds into the international capital markets has been on the decline...

The report added that this downward trend obscures the fact that established investors continue to recycle their wealth abroad by selling one asset and

Besides, investment opportunities in the domestic markets, even though witnessing some improvements recently, still lack depth and diversity.

After investing in their own business and apart from limited outlets available in local stocks and traditional real estate channels, the opportunities to invest within the region remain limited, the report said, adding that there are still ample surplus funds with the region's private sector seeking investments abroad.

The study said there are three broad groups of Gulf private investors: institutions, the high net-worth individuals and the less wealthy investors.

The institutional investors include commercial banks, investment, finance and insurance companies, utilities and manufacturing companies enjoying substantial liquidity.

Not so many years ago, only few individuals ventured beyond investing in interest bearing bank deposits, and many even used to keep large sums of money on call without accepting interest.

goals, various banks have designed unit trusts catering for the investment needs of the region's less wealthy individuals.

Though each group has different investment goals and risk return profiles, they all share many common features, the study said, adding that the average Gulf investor tends to be conservative rather than speculative.

According to the study, the Gulf investor feels more comfortable with his money invested in a familiar environment, the US and Europe being more favourable than Japan, and in products that he understands, direct investment in real estate than acquisition of corporate businesses, precious metals rather than commodities and bonds more than stocks.

Gulf investors also have a clear preference for anonymity and liquidity, reflecting their general mercantile attitude towards realising quick profits. Besides, they have not been

However, in the past few years, there has been a clear trend to diversify towards German, Japanese, British and other European markets.

The report said Gulf direct investment abroad has tended to focus on well established profitable businesses with known brand names that command sizeable portion of their home market.

Investment

It added that the industries in which there has been significant Gulf direct investment include financial institutions, department stores, luxury goods, mining, oil and gas, and transporta-

The study said Gulf investments in gold and other precious metals had dropped considerably in the last few years reflecting an increasing sophistication among investors.

It pointed out that Gulf gold bar holdings had dropped by 50 per cent to 5.5 tons last year against 11.7 tons in 1986.

The report said with the world economy continuing to show convincing evidence of having shaken off most, if not all, the repercussions of the October 1987 stock market crash, the forward momentum of economic activity this year is likely to carry on into 1989. This is especially true in the US where annualised real economic growth in first quarter this year was a robust 3.6 per cent. And growth in the remaining part of this year is expected to moderate a little bit with an overall growth of 3 per cent projected for 1989.

But the firm undertone of the dollar and the higher US interest rates will dampen economic prospects in 1989 with an average growth of around 2 per cent forecast for next year.

Concluding, the study recommended international diversification because it dampens overall portfolio volatility. Although individual foreign markets may at times be more volatile than US markets, the correlation between US and foreign markets is low as it is between individual foreign markets.

"In an internationally-diversified portfolio, therefore, trends in one market may be offset by contrasting trends in another, the study said.

World Business Summary

Brazil plans to resume borrowing in bond markets

FRANKFURT, West Germany, July 22, (AP): Brazil, the developing world's biggest debtor, plans to resume borrowing in the international bond markets, the Brazilian finance minister said yesterday. The last time Brazil launched a bond in international markets was in 1980. Finance Minister Mailson Ferreira da Nobrega told reporters that Brazil was interested primarily in testing the West German and Japanese bond markets with a modest initial issue next year. The decision to look into bond issues comes as possibilities for syndicated loans have become limited, he said. Nobrega said Brazil would aim at eventually achieving annual borrowings of between $1 billion and $2 billion once the markets gets reacquainted with Brazil as a borrower. "We are carrying out sound policies and moving in the right direction (that) ... makes sense," Nobrega said. "If you do the right things, people tend to believe in you." He said he had mentioned the possibility of a bond issue to West German bankers in Frankfurt and they agreed with his assessment that bond issues were the best way to go in the future. But syndicate managers in Frankfurt were privately sceptical. "Looking at Brazil's situation at present, they can barely deal with debt that they have," said one syndication expert at a major West German bank. "If they get into the bond market, it's like getting a new credit card with a new (credit) limit — they can spend more, but can't really afford it," said the expert, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

India to set up industrial technology data bank

NEW DELHI, July 22, (KUNA): India will set up a national industrial technology data bank at an estimated cost of Rs 70 million. The bank will collect, analyse and disseminate knowledge of technical, economic and commercial aspects of specified industrial technologies, according to industry ministry sources. The project will be implemented in a phased manner over a period of five years. As part of its efforts to see that the country kept pace with rapid technologies in developed nations, the government also proposes to establish a technology development fund, the sources said. The objective of the proposed fund will be commercialisation of technology which has already been developed successfully up to laboratory stage in the comatry. The sources said the other aims include sponsoring and funding of specific research and development projects of national or industry-wise importance, provision of venture capital for setting up industries on the basis of indigenously developed technology and upscaling of technology.

Contract signed with Amoco for offshore exploration

NEW DELHI, July 22, (AP): Amoco India Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of the American Amoco Oil Corporation, signed a contract today allowing it to explore for oil off India's eastern coast, the government amounced. The agreement was the last in a series signed with international oil companies since December in India's bid to expand exploration in offshore areas. Other successful bidders were the US-based Chevron and Texaco, with a joint bid with International Petroleum Corp. of Canada, BHP Petroleum of Australia, and Royal Dutch Shell of the Netherlands. The contract signed today opens an area of 1,500 square kilometres (600 square miles) for exploration by Amoco off the coast of Andhra Pradesh. The agreement was signed by Prabir Sengupta, joint secretary in the Petroleum Ministry; I.W. Herrick, vice-president of Amoco, and P.K. Chandra of Indianrun Oil and Natural Gas Commission. As with the other contracts, Amoco can cancel the agreement if no oil is found. If oil is discovered, it must share petroleum with the Indian government after recovering exploration and development costs. The value of the contracts has not been made public.

In all, 121,000 square kilometres (48,400 square miles) of offshore territory was opened to the foreign companies for exploration. India produces about 30 million tous of crude oil a year. But demand has outpaced production, and imports are averaging at least 17 million tons a year.

Herrington sees more Gulf oil if war ends

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22, (Reuter): An end to the Iran-Iraq war would mean an additional two to three million barrels of oil a day flowing into the world market within a year or two. US Energy Secretary John Herrington said yesterday. Speaking at a news conference, Herrington said an end to the war would make US energy policy an important issue in this year's presidential campaign. The energy secretary said that both Iran and Iraq have huge war debts and, with an end to the fighting, they will step up oil production to rebuild their economies. He said both Middle East countries have only one thing to sell to the world—oil. "So you're going to see excess oil production, in my estimation. It may not happen in the short run, but you're going to see it in the long run. I'm talking one year, two years if the war ends," Herrington said. More oil in the world market will force prices down and pose problems for the US oil industry, he said. "It raises the issue of energy for this election and it's going to mean the US government in coming years is going to have to deal with the viability of the US oil and gas industry on a very critical level," he said. Herrington said the domestic oil industry needs to survive for the good of the national security. "It means we're going to have to look at things like a return to the depletion allowance, deregulation of natural gas, change in the tax code," he said.

Plan to sign trade pact

TEHRAN, July 22, (OPECNA): Iran and Romania plan to sign a new industrial and commercial co-operation agreement at the end of their joint economic commission meeting currently being held in Bucharest. Iran's oil exports to Romania is among the topics on the agenda of the meeting which opened on Monday. The accord is expected to be signed by Iranian Minister of Plan and Budget Masud Roghani Zanjani who has already left here for Bucharest. Zanjani will also deliver a message from Iranian President Ali Khamenei to Romanian President Nicolae

The Iranian delegation to the meeting of the commission is led by Deputy Minister of Plan and Budget Mehdi Mirmoezi and includes representatives from the ministries of commerce, industries, agriculture, foreign affairs, mines and metal and the central hank. Iran and Romania already co-operate in the manufacturing of tractors. Trade relations between the two countries during the 1979-85 period amounted to more than $700 million annually.

Assad ratifies balanced budget

DAMASCUS, July 22, (Reuter): President Hafez Al Assad has ratified Syria's 1988 budget which balances income and spending, the finance minister said today. Khaled Mahayni told Reuters the budget was being implemented retrospectively from January 1988. This would give his ministry flexibility in moving funds to previous months to finance government investment projects and current spending. Expenditure and revenue in the budget, issued in a presidential law, each total 51.545 billion Syrian pounds ($4.58 billion), he said. Mahayni said the budget law terminated a special decree which had allowed provisional monthly govern-ment spending based on 1/12 of last year's budget. His ministry had already issued decrees to distribute the new allocations to ministries, institutions and companies. State assembly deputies approved the budget on Tuesday and stressed that its figures should be translated into real action.

Booming Maruti foresees European sales

NEW DELHI, July 22, (Reuter): Maruti, India's newest and most successful car company, has bright prospects for selling its 800cc sub-compact in East and West Europe, Asia and Africa, its chairman told reporters.

Chairman Venkataraman Krishnamurty said earlier this month that Hungary had taken delivery earlier this year of 500 of the nippy little runabouts, based on a Japanese Suzuki model but now 80 per cent Indian-made, and was well-satisfied with them. Besides small sales in Asia and enquiries from Africa, Maruti had received an initial order from Malta, signed a letter of intent with Yugoslavia and was in negotiation with Cze-choslovakia and East Germany,

Prospect

Another bright prospect was in France, where a company he declined to name was importing a few cars for testing for compliance with European Economic Community regulations and had signed a letter of intent to sell them there.

Maruti Udyog (Industries) Limited has produced 250,000 cars, light vans and all-purpose vehicles in the past four years, transforming India's highlyregulated automobile sector, hitherto dominated by lumbering models produced on obsolete dies and presses bought from Britain and Italy.

Its success has all but wiped out memories of Maruti's origins 20 years ago as the brainchild of Sanjay Gandhi, younger son of then Prime Minister Indira Gan-

Foreign investment shows big rise

SEOUL, South Korea, July 22, (AP): Foreign equity investment in South Korea between January and June rose to $640 million, up 51 per cent from $424 million in the same six-month period last year, the Finance Ministry reported today.

Officials said the tally on an approval basis involved 269 projects.

The marked rise in foreign investment bere was attributed to the government's easing of controls on foreigners' investment and favourable business prospects in this country.

Direct foreign investment in the manufacturing sector was listed at $306 million.

London Stock Market Report

K. SHARES STEADY ABOVE MORNING LOWS IN LATE TRADE LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - SHARE PRICES WERE STEADY AT JUST ABOVE THE DAY'S HIDMORNING LOWS BUT DEALERS SAID VOLUME HAD DROPPED TO A TRICKLE AHEAD OF THE WEEKEND. PRICES WERE MARKED DOWN IN EARLY BUSINESS FOLLOWING DECLINES IN BOTH THE TOKYO AND NEW YORK MARKETS OVERHIGHT AND EXTENDED

THEIR LOSSES IN THE MORNING SESSION. DEALERS SAID SOME PROGRAMME SELLING WAS TRIGGERED BY A FALL IN FTSE INDEX FUTURES WHILE GOVERNMENT BOND DEALERS SAID THEY DETECTED SOME SMITCHING OUT OF EQUITIES INTO INDEX-LINKED STOCK. BY 1430 GHT THE FTSE 100 STOOD 16.4 POINTS LOWER AT 1,848 HAVING REACHED A LOW OF 1,845.9 AT 0958 GMT.

AFTER A HIGH OF 420P REACHED ON CONTINUING BID SPECULATION, CADBURY SHARES FELL BACK TO STAND JUST 5P HIGHER AT 391 AFTER IT SIGNED A FRANCHISING AGREEMENT WITH HERSHEY FOODS CORP. HERSHEY WILL BUY THE OPERATING ASSETS OF CADBURY'S U.S. CONFECTIONARY BUSINESS AND WILL MANUFACTURE CADBURY BRANDS IN

THE U.S. UNDER LICENSE. DEALERS SAID THE MARKET'S FIRST REACTION TO THE DEAL, WHICH WILL COST HERSHEY 270 MLN DLRS PLUS THE ASSUMPTION OF 30 MLN DLRS OF DEBT, WAS THAT IT MADE A TAKEOVER OF CADBURY LESS LIKELY AS HERSHEY WAS ONE OF THE MAIN CANDIDATES TO MAKE AN OFFER.

London Gold

LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - GOLD BULLION EDGED ABOVE THE DAY'S LOWS BY THE CLOSE TO STAND AT 442.50/443.00 DLRS AN OUNCE, BUT WAS STILL DOWN 3.50 DLRS FROM THURSDAY'S CLOSE. SILVER LED THE OTHER PRECIOUS METALS DOWN ON LONG LIQUIDATION AND PROFIT TAKING, BUT THEN STEADIED ON LIGHT BUYING

AT THE CLOSE TO FINISH AT 771/773 CENTS AN OUNCE, COMPARED WITH A LOW OF 754/756 AND A PREVIOUS CLOSE OF 786/788. THURSDAY'S NEWS THAT THE PERUVIAN CENTRAL BANK WAS TO BUY SILVER FROM STATE-CHNED MINES AT ABOVE MARKET LEVELS BUDYED SILVER INITIALLY BUT UNCERTAINTY OVER THE MOVE AND EARLY FALLS IN THE U.S. SAM THE METAL SLIP, DEALERS SAID.

London Money Market

LONDON, JULY 22, REUTER - MONEY MARKET INTEREST RATES WERE LITTLE CHANGED TOWARD THE CLOSE BUT THE MARKET REMAINED VERY MERVOUS AHEAD OF NEXT WEEK'S CRUCIAL BRITISH TRADE FIGURES. DEALERS STILL BELIEVE HIGHER INTEREST RATES ARE ALMOST INEVITABLE IF INFLATION IS TO BE EFFECTIVELY CURTAILED. BUT STERLING'S STRONG REVIVAL HAS MADE THEN WONDER IF THE GOVERNMENT IS PREPARED TO RAISE RATES AND RISK SENDING THE POUND TO LEVELS WHICH COULD DAMAGE THE COMPETITIVENESS OF BRITISH INDUSTRY. ONE DEALER SAID, "PEOPLE ARE REALLY BEHUSED BY IT ALL, BUT I THINK A RISE HAS STILL GOT TO BE ON THE CARDS, AND ESPECIALLY SO IF THE TRADE FIGURES GIVE STERLING A KICKING.

Wall Street Statistics 'Composite'

Wall Street Market Report

NEW YORK, July 22, (Reuter): Wall Street stocks continued to show small losses. With trading light, the market was showing little reaction to a slightly lower than expected rise in consumer prices and iraq's statement that it had launched an offensive against iran

The Dow 30 was off four points at 2083 and declining issues led gainers by two-to-Analysts said the small rise in June consumer prices was not likely to change existing perceptions of accelerating inflation.

Tokyo Stock Market Report

TOKYO STOCKS CLOSE SHARPLY DOWN, MEAR DAY'S LOW TOKYO, JULY 22, REUTER - SHARE PRICES CLOSED SHARPLY LOWER WITH ALL SECTORS DOWN AS MANY INVESTORS, STILL UNCERTAIN ABOUT WHERE TO PLACE THEIR MONEY, DECIDED TO TAKE PROFITS AND WAIT, "WE SAM THE MOVE INTO ELECTRICALS FALTER, THEREFORE THE

SHIFT FROM STEELS TO ELECTRICALS RAW OUT OF STEAM AND LEFT PEOPLE WITH NO WHERE TO GO," A BROKER AT A FOREIGN SECURITIES THE WIKKEI INDEX FELL 391.13 POINTS, OR 1.41 PCT, TO

27,285.01. IT ROSE 122.16 POINTS ON THURSDAY. TURNOVER WAS MODERATE AT 1.7 BILLION SHARES AGAINST 1.5 BILLION. FALLS LED RISES BY 4.8 TO ONE.

SECURITIES HOUSE, CREDIT/LEASE, COMMUNICATIONS, PHARMACEUTICAL, RUBBER, AUTO, REAL ESTATE, NON-LIFE INSURANCE, AIRLINE AND RETAIL STOCKS WERE THE BIGGEST LOSERS. VIRTUALLY NO SECTORS ROSE.

THE NIKKEI INDEX HIT ITS LOW FOR THE DAY OF 27,272.74 POINTS JUST BEFORE THE CLOSE. THIS FINISHED OFF A WEEK OF SHARP FLUCTUATIONS WHICH HAS BEEN CLOUDED WITH UNCERTAINTY OVER THE DIRECTION OF INTEREST

RATES AND CURRENCY LEVELS. RISES IN CRUDE OIL PRICES CAUSED THE INDEX'S BIGGEST FALL OF THE YEAR ON TUESDAY. A FALL ON WALL STREET ON THURSDAY AND SLIGHT INSTABILITY IN CURRENCY LEVELS AS THE YEN ROSE AGAINST THE DOLLAR IN NEW YORK OVERNIGHT HELPED BRING THE MARKET DOWN IN INITIAL TRADE.

"IT'S BEEN A TUG-OF-WAR BETWEEN STEELS AND HIGH TECHS," SAID YOZO ASAI, A BROKER AT YAMAICHI SECURITIES. INVESTORS SOLD OFF SOME HIGH TECHNOLOGY BLUE-CHIPS ON PROFIT-TAKING AFTER THEY HAD RISEN IN NEW YORK OVERNIGHT AND HERE LATE ON THURSDAY, BUT THEY WERE BOUGHT UP AGAIN BEFORE

THE MIDDAY CLOSE. FOREIGNERS BOUGHT UP BLUE-CHIPS, SO THEY LOOKED PROMISING," AN AMALYST SAID.

Hong Kong Market Beport

HONG KONG, JULY 22, REUTER - SHARE PRICES CLOSED LOWER ON A QUIET DAY ENLIVENED ONLY BY AN AFTER-HOURS PLACEMENT OF SHARES IN MAJOR PROPERTY CHEUNG KONG, BROKERS SAID.

THE HANG SENG INDEX FELL 10.04 POINTS TO 2661.77 AND THE HONG KONG INDEX 17.88 TO 1759.98. TURNOVER WAS A LOW 714.9 NEW H.K. DLRS, AGAINST THURSDAY'S 637.20 MLN. CHEUNG KONG CHAIRMAN LI KA-SHING PLACED 41.5 MLN SHARES AT

A SEVEN PCT DISCOUNT PRICE OF 7.30 DLRS IN ORDER TO REDUCE HIS HOLDING IN THE COMPANY TO BELOW 35 PCT. HOLDING IN THE COMPANY TO BECOME SUSPENDED AFTER LAST LOCAL REQUIREMENTS, TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED AFTER LAST YEAR'S MARKET CRASH, BAN MAJORITY SHAREHOLDINGS ABOVE 35 PCT.

Singapore Stock Market Report

SINGAPORE STOCKS CLOSE LOWER

COMMERCIAL/INDUSTRIAL SECTOR

SINGAPORE, JULY 22, REUTER - SHARE PRICES CLOSED LOWER ACROSS THE BOARD ON SPECULATIVE SELLING AND PROFIT-TAKING IN MODERATE TRADING, DEALERS SAID.
THE STRAITS TIMES INDUSTRIAL INDEX FELL 9.89 POINTS TO

1,142.61 FROM THURSDAY'S 1,152.50 CLOSE. DEALERS SAID SENTIMENT WAS DEPRESSED BY A 391.13 POINT PLUNGE ON THE TOKYO STOCK MARKET AND THURSDAY'S 24-POINT FALL

THEY SAID DOUBLE-DIGIT FALLS WERE SEEN IN SOME BLUE CHIP AND QUALITY STOCKS, BUT ACTIVITY WAS FOCUSED MAINLY ON LOW-PRICED AND A FEW MALAYSIAN-BASED SPECULATIVE STOCKS.

New coffee pact in doubt ahead of London talks

LONDON, July 22, (Reuter): Wide differences beset coffee producing and importing nations who resume talks here next week on a new accord to stabilise prices in an over-supplied market. . A current international coffee organisation agreement expires in September, 1989. It sets export quotas and is the only such producer-consumer commodity pact still working.

A tin pact collapsed when its buffer stock manager ran out of money in 1985. A cocoa pact also faces cash problems. ICO delegates today saw no signs that the 74 coffee producer and consumer nations had narrowed the differences which resulted in stalemate at an opening round of talks last month. "Consumers say they will bring more specific ideas and we will study them, but I am not aware of proposals from producers," said Nestoer Osorio, Colombia's ICO

Most ICO consumer nations want a completely new agreement producers favour revision of the present pact. Agreement

"We think the present agreement can be made to work with improvements and modifications and this could satisfy the demands consumers have expressed," said Lindenberg Sette, ICO ambassador of Brazil, the largest exporter.

The United States, the biggest consumer, has not yet even made up its mind whether to remain part of a coffee agreement after US delegates will attend next week's talks but there is no decision yet on joining formal negotiation, US officials said.

A producer delegate said: "Whether the US takes part or not is fundamental to negotiations and the future of the pact."

Oil prices edge firmer

LONDON, July 22, (Reuter): Crude oil prices firmed slightly on Thursday, but were off the day's highs as speculation about the timing of an OPEC prices panel meeting and uncertainty over how Gulf war peace efforts would develop gave international petroleum markets the jitters, traders said.

in London, Brent blend, the most widely traded crude on international markets, was quoted about 10 cents over levels seen at the same time Wednesday at $15.15 a barrel for immediate delivery. However, this was about 15 cents down from the highs seen earlier in the day.

Towards the close of business

The Organisation of Petroleum Exporting countries

prices committee can call for a full meeting of the group if prices stray too far from OPEC's official target levels.

The other main topic of interest on the oil markets was the Iran-Iraq situation. Since Iran announced Monday it accepted a United Nations ceasefire resolution, any reports of fighting or news from the area are being closely watched by oil traders.

Benchmark US grade West

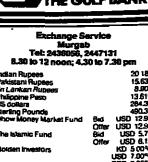

Texas Intermediate was quoted on Thursday evening London time at $16.10 a barrel, up five cents from the previous US close, while Dubai, the leading Middle East crude, was 10 cents higher than at the same time on Wednesday at $13.80 a barrel.

Venezuela to ask creditor banks for new money

CARACAS, Venezuela, July 22, (AP): Venezuela plans to ask its credit banks for new money this month but will not ask to reopen negotiations on refinancing its foreign debt, government officials said yesterday.

Finance Minister Hector Hurtado told a press conference that he and central bank president Mauricio Garcia Araujo will go to Washington and New York later this month, and possibly at the end of next week, to "initiate conversations with private banks" for new funds.

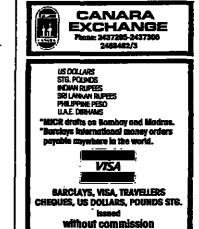

"We are not going to ask them to reformulate the refinancing accord. We are going to ask them to lend us more money." Hurtado said.

"Venezuela is going to fulfil its commitments but they (the banks) should understand that the fall in oil prices has made that difficult," he said.

Dollar sharply lower and gold dips

The dollar ended today sharply. below 11-month highs touched early this week, driven down by several days of central bank intervention against it.

Dealers said a buoyant US economy still made the dollar, which began a powerful rally just over a month ago. look like a good buy. But central banks' apparent determination to stabilise exchange rates made for caution.

"There's only a limited amount by which the dollar can go up before it triggers strong intervention." said Roberto Bianchi, foreign exchange manager at Union Bank of Switzerland in Zurich.

The dollar ended the European day at 1.8290 West German marks after Thursday's closing 1.8344 and almost 1.89 at the start of the week. Rates

Speculative money leaving the dollar was attracted by high British interest rates into sterling and the pound gained 1-1/2 cents on -the day to $1.7360.

The dollar has lost three per cent against the mark and nearly four per cent against sterling this

Its earlier rally was fuelled by growing confidence in a buoyant American economy and a belief that the massive US trade deficit would continue to decline. it fell after heavy central bank sales this week, when the US Federal Reserve. West Germany's Bundesbank and the Bank of Japan joined forces to stop its advance.

News that US consumer prices rose a modest 0.3 per cent in June after increasing by the same amount in May had little impact on the dollar.

Hershey Foods Corp. Hershey will buy the operating assets of Cadbury's US confectionery business and will manufacture Cadbury brands in the US under license.

Deal Dealers said the market's first reaction to the deal, which will cost Hershey $270 million plus the assumption of $30 million of debt, was that it made a takeover of Cadbury less likely as Hershey was one of the main candidates to make an offer.

Dealers said turnover in the rest of the market was modest and any sell programme would tend to have an exaggerated effect. They underlined that there was little real selling pres-

Deficit

After May's record current account deficit of £1.21 billion, the market is expecting a shortfall of at least £750 million but forecasts go as high as £1.01 billion.

Traders say a current account gap much larger than expected would rekindle fears that inflationary pressures are rising and lead to pressure for another rise in UK base rates.

Pressure for another hike this week has subsided in the face of a firm pound and slightly easier money market rates.

After they had had some time to digest the announcement regarding Cadbury, dealers said the deal with Hershey would likely impove Cadbury's overall performance — making the com-pany a more difficult takeover

There had been much talk in the market that Hershey would buy US firm General Cinema's 14.8 pct stake in the UK confectionery to soft drinks company.
Away from Cadbury, speculative demand was the constituencies. Reed International was third most active with volume of 4.7 million and a Storehouse was 6p firmer at 251 on volume of four million shares. Traders said there was talk that property group Mount-leigh might make another bid after last year's failed attempt to buy the stores group. Enterprise Oil was 8p up at 482 and dealers said news of an appraisal report on the Nelson Field, showing reserves at 175 million barrels compared with the 100 million announced in March, outweighed the impact of enterprise's bid and share

Stake

Enterprise said it is to pay $276 million for a 10 per cent stake in three oilfield blocks owned by Texas Eastern. The deal will be funded by the issue of 36 million new shares at 440.

Worries about inflation and rising interest rates have weighed on stock markets throughout the week, with higher oil prices a particular worry in Japan.
Brent crude oil from the North

Sea feiched around $15.50 a barrel late on Friday, up about 10 per cent on the week. Traders believe moves to end the Gulf war could clear the way for a tough new OPEC agreement on pricing and production.

Stock dealers hustle in trading at the Tokyo Stock Exchange on Thursday. Share prices closed up and on the day's highs after an up and down session which closed with a late afternoon buying spree, brokers said. (Reuter wirephoto) yesterday's losses to close near lows as foreign dealers took advantage of the weaker dollar to cash in German shares. The Dax 30-share index closed at 1,153.73, one per cent or 11.69 point below yesterday.

PARIS: Shares ended steady in quiet trade, off morning lows but showing little positive reaction to the commercial bank rate cut. The 50-share bourse indicator showed a late 0.1 per cent gain.

ZURICH: Swiss share prices ended easier in moderate trading. A cautious attitude prevailed amid uncertainties over interest rates and the lower dollar. NEW YORK: Stocks continued to show small losses in light trading. The Dow 30 was off four points at 2,083 and declining issues led gainers by two-to-one.

Broker predicts copper surplus

LONDON, July 22. (Reuter): Increased world copper output in 1989 is likely to end a run of higher prices which began about a year ago, London brokers Shearson Lehman Hutton said Shearson's quarterly report said production was surging ahead. Prices, which earlier hit spot highs of 150 US cents per pound (0.45 kg) had not regained these levels. Shearson said the current year's surplus would be 65,000 tonnes, against a previous estimate of 130,000 and compared with a deficit last year of just over 300,000 tonnes.

In 1989, production would continue to surge but demand a 430,000-tonne surplus.

The International Tropical

Timber Organisation, an association of 42 producing and consuming countries, approved a S4 million logging and conservation project in the remote jungle state of Acre, on Brazil's border with Bolivia 2,800 miles (4,500 kilometres) northwest of Rio de Janeiro.

Project

"This was the big one. We hope the Acre project can serve spokesman for the World Wildlife Fund, told the AP at the end from the shrinking forests of Africa and southeast Asia. But conservationists are worried about the effect on the climate of uncontrolled logging in the Amazon basin, a 2 million square-mile (5.2 million squareEurope — that covers parts of seven South American countries and contains one-third of the world's rainforest.

Already the Amazon forest is disappearing at the rate of some 27 million acres (11 million hectares) a year, mostly at the hands of small farmers and ranchers who cut and burn the trees, Markham said. "The rainforest is a gaseous sink for carbon dioxide. The trees soak it up. If we cut them down, there's no way to get rid of the gas. And that contributes to the greenhouse effect." he said.

The greenhouse effect is a gradual warming of the earth's surface because of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere that traps the sun's heat, like a greenhouse.

"We know the Amazon will be used. It's too big a resource not to be used. But we think it's better if that happens under the auspices of the ITTO," Markham s.i.d.

The Acre project, which will get about $3 million from the Brazilian government and the rest from the timber organisation, is the largest approved since the organisation was founded in their economies - expositions. Six cities held expos of various kinds last year to help attract national attention, business and tourists. This year, the number is up to 16 and at least 10 have been aiready announced for next year.

Exposition

The themes of these expositions - some might say excuses - vary widely, from flowers and food to toys and outer space, and so does their scale.

people are expected to visit these expositions in 1988 and 1989, equivalent to nearly two-thirds of Japan's population.

But a total of some 70 million has joined in the exposition trail with Future Watch '88, which opened on July 8. One of the main reasons for staging this exposition is to invigorate Gifu and create a new image for Gifu," said local official Takemasa Obata, who is on the expo's planning commit-

"The aim is to make the city more widely known to the rest of Japan and to the world," he

The expo is sponsored jointly by local government and business organisations, and officials expect a turnout of up to three million visitors for the 73-day

Gifu has little to recommend it from a tourist point of view but the organisers are trying to make the most of the historical sites and hi-tech factories in the surrounding districts. By spending a lot of money on the exposition, economic activities will be activated and people's cultural life will be enlivened," he said.

exceeds that amount. "All in all, we estimate the event will produce an economic ripple effect equal to an investment of some 200 billion ven ($1.5 billion)," said expo official Tatsuo Hashizume. "We expect the event will invigorate Gifu people's thinking and activities." The expo's theme — future watch — was chosen because

Gifu wants to give itself a more modern image, said Harry Hill. adviser to the committee on international relations, The exposition features a lifesize model of the US space shuttle and exhibits which stress advanced electronics. Saitama Prefecture, north of Tokyo, staged "'88 Saitama Expo" from March 19 to May 29 this year, attracting 2.5 million visitors and a surplus of some 200 to 300 million yen ($1.5 to 2.2

million). "We believe we have attained, to some extent, our objectives of invigorating the less-developed northern part of our prefecture. fostering a feeling of solidarity

Japanese cities try expos to boost their economies between Saitama's north and south, and publicising its new image," said Moriyoshi Suda of Saitama's exposition promotion

> The port city of Yokohama, close to Tokyo, is to stage "Yokohama exotic showcase (YES '89)" from March to October next year. Organisers estimate 12.5 million people will visit it. Masatoshi Mizutani, of the said the event, to be staged in a new water-front district, is designed to encourage the development of the area into an "intensive information town." Organisers have their financial sights set high. They expect Yokohama's businesses to benefit from the exposition to the tune of more than 1,000 billion yen ($7.5 billion).

Iraq edge Syria for Arab Cup

AMMAN, July 22, (Reuter): Iraq retained the Arab Cup in Amman last night, beating Syria on penalties in a heart-stopping finish to the fifth Arab Cup Soccer Championships.

The nations are arch-rivals in Arab politics, but the Iraqi and Syrian teams showed no signs of ill-temper during a closelyfought game that stretched into

More than 8,000 Syrians in the capacity 25,000 crowd at the Amman International Stadium roared when Walid Al Nasser drove home the first goal for Syria in the 18th minute. Level

But Iraq struck back with a goal from Basil Kurkis just one minute later and the scores stayed level.

Both sides played sparkling football in the first half, but the Iraqis looked superior. Only some brilliant saves from goalkeeper Ahmed Shaqouhi kept the Syrian goal intact. Syria came back strongly in the second half and upset the Iraqi rhythm with rugged midfield play and a determined

Both sides missed chances in extra time as exhaustion sapped skills and with scores level after two hours of play, the Cup had to be decided in a nerve-wracking

WITH three consecutive victories behind him, reigning world 500cc champion Wayne Gardner chases win number four at the 5.81 km Paul Ricard circuit in the south of France on Sunday.

Five weeks ago the Rothmans Honda NSR500 rider trailed Eddie Lawson by 40 points in the championship table. He's now halved that advantage to 20 points. With six rounds remaining in the championship race Gardner feels he is back in with a chance of retaining the title that appeared to be slipping from his

Krishnan and Gilbert upset

WASHINGTON, July 22, (Reuter): Derrick Rostagno and 16-year-old fellow-American Michael Chang both pulled off upsets to advance to the quarter-finals of the $415,000 D.C. Classic tennis tournament yesterday.

Rostagno, the 16th seed, ousted second-seeded compatriot Brad Gilbert 6-4 6-3, while Chang eliminated fifth seed Ramesh Krishnan of India 6-4

For the fourth successive night, rain marred the night programme this time forcing the third-round match between topseeded American Jimmy Connors and 15th seed Jorge Lozano of Mexico to be postponed until

Also advancing to the quarters were third-seeded Andress Gomez of Ecuador, Americans Aaron Krickstein, the fourth seed, and eighth-seeded Jav Berger, seventh-seeded Darren Cahill of Australia and unseeded Barry Moir of South Africa.

Rostagno, rated 82 in the world, took control of both sets at 3-3 and held on to win each when Gilbert failed to capitalise on three games in which he held 40-15 leads.

Rostagno, who has beaten Gilbert in two of the three career. meetings, said he was pleased with his tennis but that he did not play up to his potential.

Chang, who lost to Krishnan in his professional debut in Memphis, Tennessee, in February, did not allow the smooth-stroking-Indian to controi the points.

Instead. Chang applied pressure by moving Krishnan around the court with his aggressive groundstrokes, while looking for openings to win points.

hat-trick against Surrey

Wasim gets

LONDON, July 22, (Agencies): Pakistani all-rounder Wasim Akram was Lancashire's hero for the second consecutive day in their three-day English County Cricket Championship match against Surrey at rain-hit Southport yesterday. Wasim, regarded by his national team captain Imran Khan as the most promising young player in the world, recorded the first hat-trick of his career on Wednesday while tak-ing five for 58 in Surrey's first innings.

Signs

The left-arm paceman, who had to pass a fitness test on a back injury before play started, showed no signs of discomfort and wrecked the Surrey middleorder by trapping Ian Grieg lbw with a yorker then bowling Keith Medlycott and Nigel Feltham with successive balls. Surrey were dismissed for 253.

Wasim was the best when Lancashire trumbled to 140 all out vesterday. He hit a defiant 58 to save his team from a follow-on. Wasim then sent back Grahame Clinton and fellow opener Paul Atkins when Surrey made 51 for two in their second innings by close yesterday. -

South African-born Roy Pienaar struck an unbeaten 74 and helped to sustain Kent's bid for the championship in the face of a fine all-round performance by Northamptonshire's Richard Williams. In-form Pienaar, who faced 127 balls and hit a six and eight fours, spurred the leaders to 268 for seven, at which point they declared 61 behind on first innings at Northampton.

Kent then snapped up two quick wickets, reducing Northants to 18 for two before bad light ended play 30 minutes early or the second day of the three-day

Williams did his best to put brake on Kent's drive for the title, and at the same time over shadowed Dennis Lillee's return for Northants after an ankle s

After extending his overnigh 46 to 71 not out, Williams snap ped up five for 86 with his off spin. Lillee trapped Trevor Wardlbw in his fifth over and endec with one for 43.

Unbeaten Australian captain Allan Border scored 55 and Keith Fletcher made an unbeaten 45 as secondplaced Essex edged two runs ahead of Hampshire on a raincurtailed day at Portsmouth.

Dutch paceman Jan Bakker took his fifth wicket of the innings by dismissing Border, but skipper Fletcher guided Essex to 203 for seven before a downpour washed out the last

WELLINGTON, July 22, (Reuter): New Zealand and Somerset cricketer Martin Crowe slammed a proposed restructuring of the English county game which could cost him his Somerset contract. The plan of England chairman of selectors Peter May would restrict counties to one overseas player.

"He (May) is just looking for an excuse because England doesn't have many good homegrown players at the moment, Crowe who has returned to New Zealand because of injury, said in a newspaper interview published today.

Somerset has two overseas players on its books, the recuperating Crowe and Australian all-rounder Stephen "As far as I'm, concerned, overseas players have been propping up the championship for a number of years now, and it would be a backward step if they whittled it down to what he wants.

"It's not as if we're keeping good players out of jobs. The overseas player is only keeping the worst player in the side from playing. The best players are still all there.

Counties this year are allowed to have two overseas players on their books but able to play only Crowe said Somerset is likely to fight May's plan. Crowe is contracted to Somer-set until the end of next year. He said May is attacking the symptoms, but not the cause of the declining English game. "They've got to restructure the whole county championship," he said. "May wants to have 16 great idea. But by restricting counties to only one overseas player, you're penalising the wrong people. On Wednesday, May called for a three-point overhaul of the English first-class game to improve our cricket."

Former England captain May said: "First we need to alter the programme of our game. That means there should be 16 fourday games to make up the county championship."

"There should be only one overseas cricketer allowed on the staff of a county club." May

"And we have got to battle for better wickets. That is what the selectors want. This sort of thing needs stirring up occasionally and I thought I would stir it up again," said May.

Sri Lanka's opening match ends in draw

OXTON, England, July 22, (Reuter): Sri Lanka's two-day opening tour match against a League Cricket Conference side ended in a draw yesterday with less than two hours' play possible on the second day.

Overnight rain seeped under the covers on to the pitch to delay the start until 1430 GMT.

Then, after the League Cricket Conference had declared their second innings closed at 120 for four leaving Sri Lanka to score 130 in 65 minutes, rain brought a premature end to the match.

Concede

Sri Lanka declared their first innings closed at the overnight total of 138 for three, to concede a deficit of nine runs.

The Conference side were then indebted to a superb 43 from Steve Gordon, a Jamaican in England on a one-year cricket scholarship.

Gordon struck five flowing fours in a 79-minute innings before he was caught behing off the bowling of leg-spinner Brian Rajadurai
